THE HEADMASTER

As we hear of the retirement of Mr. Hamblin, those of us who have been at School during the past two decades will cast our minds back to our own schooldays, and to our own personal dealings with our headmaster. As we all know, he has devoted the whole of his time and energy as headmaster to the well-being of his School and its staff, and to the happiness of his pupils, and he has spared no pains to see them on the right road when their turn came to leave School and go out into the world. As we reflect on these things, we feel a deep debt of gratitude which we neither knew how to express, nor how to repay. Perhaps the
