EDITOR'S NOTES

As most of you will have noticed from the last issue, our previous Editor has had to lay down his pen because of more urgent demands on his time, and the office of editing this section of the Magazine has fallen on to new shoulders. It seems to me—a mere beginner, completely ignorant of everything appertaining to the art of editing—that it is quite a pleasant occupation if plenty of news and letters are forthcoming, but that it can be something in the nature of an ordeal if one has to go out and scrape together, or concoct out of one's own head, items with which to fill these pages. I would therefore begin by making an appeal to you for
