EDITOR'S NOTES

This copy, as far as our section is concerned, is scanty this time. There has been some welcome response to our appeal for news, but not enough. Particularly welcome is the letter in our later pages from Denis Mason. In his letter he extends the offer of such assistance he is able to give to those of us who may be seeking fortune in Southern Rhodesia. This is what we stand for and I thank him for his public spirit in doing so. At last we have an example before us of what one may do for another. It is hoped that any requests for help will not be instigated by any selfish motives. In this country of ours self-preservation has (of necessity) been apt to figure largely in our lives to-day, but we Old Altrinchamians should—even if we don't—abhor such an insular view of life as it is now.

Once more a depressing tone enters my notes. The responsibility for these pages must pass on to other hands. My time is so fully occupied now that my temporary editorship must end. Again, many thanks, for the help you have given me. I shall miss reading your letters. Few of you have known me personally and it is hoped that my successor will be someone you really know. Extend the helping hand to your new Editor. Good luck, wherever you are.

THE EDITOR.
