EDITOR'S NOTES

As I sit writing these notes, I am forcibly reminded by the incessant hammering of raindrops against the window that summer is here again. Outside, apart from the trees which are almost bent double in the howling gale, there is nothing to be seen but water. This is very unfortunate, since officially, the football season has already ended. Those energetic young madmen, who each Saturday afternoon carry the Association's banner to such picturesque parts of the Lancashire countryside as Failsworth Pole, or Wigan, have retired for a while to nurse their wounds, or have joined with the rest of us in anticipation of the enjoyment of some more peaceful and gentlemanly summer activity, such as cricket, or tennis, or fourteen-day spell at School Camp (—or is it 15 days at a Z-reserve establishment?)

The Summer Camp this year covers the period from July 26th to August 14th, and will be held in the usual place (I doubt very much whether a more suitable camping resort could possibly exist, than the one that we have at Ladram Bay, where members of the School, past and present, have made very many friends).
